PELHAM FIGHTS

Road Planned to Run Through Woods, and Residents Say They Will Not Benefit.

(Special to The Evening World.)
WHITE PLAINS, N. Y., Oct. 20.—The little village of Pelham, which is the home of many wealthy New Yorkers and considered the smallest incorporated village in the United States, because it is only half a mile square, through its Corporation Counsel, Ben. L. Fairchild. has entered objections with Supreme Court Justice Keogh against the proposed route of the New York and Port Chester Railroad through that place.

Chester Railroad through that place.

He contends that part of the road will pass through woods and that it will not be near the residential section, where it would do the most good.

The company, which proposes to build a four-track rapid transit system from New York to Port Chester, has secured orders to cross highways in all the towns except Pelhom, and there promises to be a bitter fight before it reaches all agreement with the village.

It is said that the company will buy more than $1,000,000 worth of private property along the Sound for its route, as it proposes to construct its line almost exclusively over private lands except where it crosses the public high-ways.
